Question Sentences: Read, Trace and Copy

Checked answers and adult support.

The three model questions

Where is the red kite? Can you see the moon? Is the small boat ready?

What to check

Compare each copied question with its model. Look for the capital initial, every word in the right order, spaces between words and a final question mark. A spoken answer to the question is welcome but is not a fixed answer to this handwriting task.

An original question

The last response is open. Accept a sensible question with a capital initial and question mark. An adult can help rehearse it aloud or write a model for the learner to copy.

Comfortable practice

This is general print copying, not a named handwriting or letter-formation scheme. Use the letter shapes and formation already taught by the learner's adult or teacher. Complete one row at a time and stop for a break if needed.
